IN APPRECIATION . . . . . .

Throughout our lives and school years, we have been faced with many situations and experiences. Standing behind us, directing the way, are those to whom we are so grateful, "Our Parents." To them we would like to express our sincere thanks and earnest appreciations for the many sacrifices, efforts and support they have given to us.

For as our senior year ends, and the days progress, what you have instilled in us will be shown. As we become the men and women of tomorrow, we will endeavor to attain the highest goals. Again we say "thank you" with a profound sincerity.

DEDICATED TO . . .

MR. WILLIAM W. SMITH

Although we have been influenced by many in our school life, to us you have been one of the most valuable teachers. With your generosity, your patient understanding, your thoughtfulness, your wise counsel and interest, you have influenced our traits in scholastic ability, potentiality and personal life. Memories of your kindness as well as that familiar slang, "Ah! Boogaloo," will have a special place in our hearts that shall linger forever.

In evidence of our highest esteem and gratitude, we dedicate this edition of "The 1968 Forget-Me-Not" to you, our Mr. William W. Smith.

Mr. E. E. Gilliam, Principal, and Mrs. P. B. Wright, Elementary Building Principal.

Principal's Message

Reflect for a moment with me on Dunbar High School's noble heritage. Even the name "Dunbar" reaches back to a man who dared to be different, to venture, to be creative, to be a poet for all ages.

In this long-lived beauty, in a tradition of excellence, Dunbar's Staff has dedicated itself to the task of creating students who are capable of making new contributions, not simply of repeating what other generations have done. We recognize that there must be a pertinent relationship, a purposeful interaction between student and teacher, home and community, nation and the world. Ready-made trends of thought, the collecting of facts, disseminating specific knowledge, memorizing, and recall are all important, but they must be related to the other rational powers of the students, such as, organizing, selecting, imagining, analyzing, classifying, comparing and evaluating creatively and purposefully.

It would please us to think that our boys and girls will seek to use ideas and knowledge gained here to fashion "a better way of life", to devise fresh and positive ways of meeting future purposes.

Our age, The Great Society, demands the most of every individual. In this climate of change, the graduate will find his potential place only in so far as he has committed his life to the unfinished task of creatively probing for significant opportunities as a life-long learner. It is increasingly clear, that to cope acceptably with our environment, students must pass successfully through the doors of high school, college and/or some similar formal training. Our age demands it and Dunbar's tradition asks no less of its students!

May God bless each of you to live abundantly and creatively, making your own footprints upon the sands of time!
